058a	BR333	Interviewer Training and Instructions for Brand question: Emphasize "specific" in the question. If respondent gives a brand name that could fit several different entries in the coded list, probe as necessary for other descriptors, to determine whether any of the listed varieties matches the respondent's answer. If the response is vague or nonspecific, prompt respondent by saying: "What is the name you use when you ask for your brand in the store?" Always confirm your choice with the respondent: e.g. "There is a brand on my list that says "Basic Ultra Light Menthol 100s" -- would that be the same as your brand?" or "Would that be the brand you smoke most?" If the respondent's answer exactly matches the name on the list, simply read back the brand name as confirmation: e.g. "So your brand is Benson & Hedges Methol Mild King Size". INTERVIEWER TRAINING -- Examples of probing: If respondent gives no strength indication at all, ask "Is your brand any particular strength, or isn't that part of the brand name?" If respondent says "just regular strength" or "the plain kind" or "full flavour", confirm that he/she smokes the default strength: "So there's no mention of strength in your brand's name?" Sometimes "full flavour" is actually part of the brand name and sometimes it is unmentioned because it is the default strength. This same kind of probing applies also to cigarette length – the shortest length for a given brand family will generally be the default length and may not be mentioned by the respondent, but the interviewer should explicitly confirm this with the respondent: "you didn't mention what length your cigarette is. Would that be [regular/ King size...] that you smoke?" IN UK and AU, strength descriptors have been banned, so manufacturers use other words to discriminate among varieties. The different varieties include colours (blue, white, gold, etc) or words like "Fine" or "Smooth" in their names. Probing for these words can't mention strength, but rather interviewers should say: "Are there any other words that help identify the name of your brand?" OR "How do you ask for your specific brand in the store?" If the response could fit several different varieties on the list, ask specifically: "Would that be Pall Mall gold or Pall Mall white, or something else?" In the brand lists for UK and AU, these non-strength descriptors have been treated like strength descriptors, in that they immediately follow the brand family's name in the variety's listing. If respondent says "ultra light" and the list for that brand family includes only the term "mild," and never "light", then say: Could that be "ultra mild"? If the description offered by the respondent isn't specific enough and therefore fits both menthol and non-menthol entries, probe by saying: "Is that menthol or not menthol?" Similarly, if the description could apply to entries for multiple lengths – e.g. King Size and 100s -- probe by saying: "Do you smoke King Size or 100s, or some other length?" In other words, use the names of the listed entries – within the mentioned brand family -- to probe for details, and thus to narrow down the options and identify the one code that fits the respondent's answer – if there is one. Confirm that variety with the respondent. If no entry matches, or if respondent does not confirm the entry you think is closest, then code "other" and enter respondent's answer as a text response.

131a	SM200	Interviewer Training Notes on Classification of Stop-smoking Medications: 1. There is confusion between NRTs (Nicotine replacement therapies/ products) and prescription (Rx) medications, mostly because patients often get NRTs with a doctor's prescription. The availability of NRTs without a prescription varies over countries.
